

Viking for an evening Danfoss AC – learning for life

10

people

was introduced to the life as Viking. Storm and rain changed the activities.

September 14th at 4 pm the Sebbe crew met at the harbor in Augustenborg to prepare the boat for the event. But it was blowing a "pelican" and heavy dark clouds build up like a wall in the vest. It was looking very wet and seemed to be ready to drown the participants.

At 4.30 pm the guests arrived dressed in thin clots. The sun was still shining but with the hard wind skipper decided to cancel the sailing. At this stage the guests was disappointed, but safety and dry guest is a very good thing. Honestly they were happy – small boat, lot of wind and rain – not the best combination.

Women power when it is best!

The alternative program started by entering the big vikingboat Sebbe Als where the crew told about the boat and the history. Then they went to the Naust (boathouse) by car.

Well arrived they had a look around – the dark clouds came closer and it was decided to start some competition. Two teams were built and the first activity rope pulling was started – this gave not only a winning team, but a lot of fun. Mead (Viking beer) was served to the tired people, and they liked it!

Throwing a stone is easy, but if the weight is 7 – 8 kg it is not that easy. More interesting strategies/tactics was developed and tested – this also gave a winner.

Then dinner was served – wild pork with salad and good beer from micro breweries.

After dinner coffee was served and a lecture about the vikings was held. To compensate

Full focus on a powerfull woman for the missing sailing the participants got a book about the history of Sebbe Als. The arrangement stopped 9.30 pm, as there was a program for the next day. The crew thanks all the participants for a nice evening.